Glass repairs and reproductions

Sometimes it is just not possible to repair glass items. This may be because not all of the pieces are present to allow us to bond them together or perhaps because a crack has formed for which no repair can be done. However what we can do is have a new replica piece of glass blown and cut to match your original. On the right is an example in the form of an engraved claret jug with silver handle and spout. The original glass was too badly damaged to salvage, so a new piece was blown, cut and then engraved with the same pattern by our skilled glass workers. The silver mount was then soaked off the original and plastered on to the replica.

The Lord Mayor’s Chandelier Activity Book

We were delighted to be asked by Lady Mayoress Wendy Parmley to help design an Activity Book for youngsters attending the annual children’s party held at Mansion House hosted by The Right Honourable The Lord Mayor. David Wilkinson helped design a number of elements within the activity pack that was given to each child, containing lots of fun facts about chandeliers and quizzes as well as crosswords and word searches . The most exciting element was sure to be the pop out ‘Make your own chandelier’. From card templates the children had to gently pop out the chandelier pieces and assemble them to create a 3D frame and glass drops, after tying on the drops they were given stands of ‘diamonds’ to decorate their chandeliers.
